Grand Jury Returns a Big List Is Possible For July 1st. as Asylum Indictments. Ordered.

Five of Gov. Beckham's Appointees In The Batch—Twenty or More True Bills. Delay In Civil Service Examination And No report Yet.

The Christian county grand jury adjourned Wednesday afternoon, after two record-breaking sessions of fifteen days. Another big batch of indictments were returned, including twenty or more for poker playing and crap shooting by officials, employees and privileged visitors in the Western Asylum for the Insane. This list comprises nine individuals who are indicted from one to several times each. Five of the men, or more than half of them, hold commissions from the Governor and the rest are now or were at the time the alleged offenses were committed—employees of the asylum. The list does not include all who participated in the games in violation of law, as much difficulty was experienced in securing witnesses. The witnesses upon whose testimony these indictments were found were Dr. E. B. McCormick, J. J. Moore and Horace Jenkins.

An attempt was made to indict Dr. McCormick for permitting gambling, but this failed by a vote of six to six. It was not shown that any of the gambling was in Dr. McCormick's rooms and it was further claimed that he had lost his position by trying to break up the reign of gambling in other apartments in the asylum and on the premises.

It is said the indictments were returned by a vote of ten to two.

As Inspector Hines is said to be investigating other branches of the charges made last spring, the grand jury only returned indictments in cases overlooked by the Inspector. In addition to the Asylum indictment about fifty others were returned for poker playing in Hopkinsville. Many of the parties are prominent. The list is not at present obtainable.

The free mail delivery service cannot possibly be begun next Monday, as ordered. There has been an unexplained delay in reporting the list of eligibles and the carriers cannot be appointed, qualified and uniformed in less time than a week or ten days.

The fixtures and supplies have all been received, but the delay of the civil service examiners will necessarily postpone the service.

There is also much complaint over the partial service to be supplied. Only the people along a few streets will get their mail delivered.

There are three routes laid off about as follows:

One begins at Main and 7th and the carrier goes out Main to Weber, back to Main, thence to the river, thence with 1st to Vine, thence to Hays, with Hays to Campbell, thence with Campbell to 7th, thence with 7th to Elm, with Elm to 2nd, with 2nd, to Jesup, with Jesup to 7th and back to Main.

Another route begins at 7th and Main and goes east with 7th to Brown, back to Belmont, Belmont to 9th, 9th to Walnut, out Walnut to 13th, 13th to Main, Main north to 7th.

The third route begins at Walnut and 13th, with Walnut to 14th thence to Campbell, Campbell to 18th, 18th to Virginia, Virginia to 20th, 20th to Main, west with 19th to High, High back to Main thence to 15th, thence to B. F. College and back to Main, to 13th and east to beginning.

People who are off these routes will still get their mail at the post-office. In other words the service is very incomplete and sure to cause dissatisfaction and complaint. As there is but one government, those who do not like the service are at liberty to kick. That is all they can do.

ALL IS LOVELY

For the Great Good Roads Convention.

Road-Building Will Begin July 6 and the Convention Follows July 10 and 11.

The National Good Roads train is now at Louisville and the next stand will be at Cairo, Ill. It will reach here next Friday, when the road building will begin.

Preparations are proceeding satisfactorily and everything will be in readiness.

Mrs. Jno. B. Russell and Douglas Bell are on the road drumming for and advertising the coming convention July 10 and 11 and many acceptances from prominent men are already coming in to the Committee on Invitation. Another special Good Roads supplement is issued to-day.

FORMER ASYLUM PATIENT

Arrested On Serious Charge Preferred In Davies County.

Officers Cravens and Armstrong arrested Mack Howard Wednesday night near the city on a warrant from Owensboro charging him with malicious shooting.

Howard had been in the asylum but was discharged some months ago and had since been working in the neighborhood and lodging at the home of Mr. Walter C. Cook.

Chief Mathews took the prisoner to Owensboro Wednesday night and turned him over to the Davies county authorities.

OPEN MONDAY.

NO MORE TOLL GATES IN CHRISTIAN COUNTY.

Sale of Bonds Will Be Made And Gates Opened July 1st.

We are informed that all arrangements are being made to cash the $75,000 of county turnpike bonds this week, buy the turnpike contracted for and throw open all the tollgates next Monday morning. The date set for the delivery of bonds is July 1st and it is so well understood that all details will be carried out that the turnpike companies will wind up their business June 30th and after Sunday night there will be no more toll collected in Christian County. It will be a great and a glorious day for the best county in Kentucky.

AGED EARMER

Dead at His Home In South Christian.

Mr. Geo. D. Griffey, an old and well known farmer of near Garretttsburg died, Tuesday at his home. He had long been a resident of that neighborhood and was between 75 and 80 years of age. The funeral services were held at the residence and the burial took place in the family burying ground near Noah Springs.

Within less than 24 hours after Mr. Griffey's death, his only surviving brother, Aaron Griffey, of Stewart county, Tenn., also died and was interred yesterday in the same graveyard.

LAFAYETTE NEWS.

New Wheat Being Delivered—Some Sickness—Other Items.

Lafayette, Ky., June 27.—Rev. J. E. King, pastor of the Methodist church here, has been quite sick for several days. He is threatened with typhoid fever.

The farmers of this section have commenced wheat threshing. The first new grain was delivered here Tuesday by Mr. Lewis Geo and was sold at the mill for 54 cts.

Jim Leavell, col., died Monday of typhoid fever. He had been at work in a coal mine in Hopkins county, where he was taken sick. He was brought to his home here last Friday.

Mr. A. F. Joiner, who has been very ill for several weeks, is now up and able to be out. There has been considerable sickness in this section recently.

DROPPED DEAD.

Leon Levy, the Nashville Insurance Man, Dies Suddenly.

Expired Wednesday Night at His Boarding House in This City.

Mr. Leon Levy, husband of Madam Levy, the milliner, who was in the insurance business in Nashville, and divided his time between that city and Hopkinsville, died suddenly at his boarding house in this city about nine o'clock Wednesday night. He lived at Mrs. Bowie's when in the city and reached the city a few days ago in apparently good health.

He died very suddenly, being taken with heart failure and expiring before medical assistance could be secured. Mr. Levy was 54 years old and a gallant ex-Confederate soldier. He went into the army when a mere boy, only 14 years old, and served throughout the war.

He was a man of jovial disposition and made friends wherever he went.

He was an Odd Fellow and belonged to other societies.

The body was taken to Nashville for interment yesterday.

TANDY & ECKLES.

READY FOR THE WAITER.

Man Who Wanted a Bill of Fare He Could Read.

He pulled himself up at the hotel table, tucked his napkin under his chin, picked up the bill of fare, and began to study it intently. Everything was in restaurant French, and he didn't like it.

"Here, waiter," he said, sternly, "there's nothing on this I want."

"Ain't there nothing you would like for dinner, sir?" inquired the waiter, politely.

"Have you got any sine qua non?"

The waiter gasped.

"No, sir," he replied.

"Got any bona-fide?"

"N-no, sir."

"Got any semper eadem?"

"No, sir, we haven't."

"Got any jeu d'esprits?"

"No, sir, not one."

"Got any tempus fugit?"

"I reckon not, sir."

"Got any soleres denants?"

"No, sir."

The waiter was edging off.

"Got any sine die?"

"We ain't, sir."

"Got any pluribus unum?"

The waiter's face showed some signs of intelligence.

"Seems ter me I heerd of that, sir," and he rushed out to the kitchen, only to return empty-handed.

"Maybe you've got some beef and cabbage and a gooseberry tart?"

"Sure we have, sir," exclaimed the waiter, in a tone of the utmost relief; and he fairly flew out to the kitchen.—London Tit-Bits.

Queens' Oaks at Windsor.

It may not be generally known that many of the queens of England have been in the habit of choosing oaks in Windsor forest to which they have given their name. This, with the date of choice, has been engraved on a brass plate and fastened to the tree. Hence, in the most beautiful part of the forest may be seen with seats round them trees bearing the names of Queen Elizabeth, Queen Caroline, Queen Charlotte and Queen Victoria. Herne's oak, mentioned in the "Merry Wives of Windsor" as being in Windsor park, was destroyed by the wind on the 31st of August, 1863.

LIKE A FLASH

The Vital Spark Was Extinguished in Harvey Boyd.

Touched a Live Wire While Adjusting An Electric Arc Light.

Harvey Boyd, an employee of the Hopkinsville Electric Light Company, was instantly killed Wednesday night about nine o'clock while adjusting a street lamp on Sixteenth street. The light was turned off in some way and Mr. W. T. Tandy, who saw his efforts, warned Boyd to let the light alone until the next day. Boyd went away and then returned and began working at it a second time, after lowering the light to the street. Ewell Bonles was present and also warned him that it was dangerous to work on the light while the current was turned on. In some way his face came in contact with the wire and he fell dead to the street.

Boyd was 20 years old and a son of Monroe Boyd. He had been in the employ of the Electric Light Company for about a month.

Coroner Allensworth held an inquest at once and a verdict was returned in accordance with the facts set forth.

Boyd's body was taken to Kelly yesterday afternoon for interment, in the Boyd burying ground.

A Literary Treat.

Prof. Maurice M. Gordon, the talented and brilliant young lecturer of Tallahassee, Fla., delivered his announced lecture, "The Hidden Man of the Heart," at the Christian church in this city Wednesday evening under the auspices of the "Bible School" now in session at the South Kentucky College, to a cultured and appreciative audience.

He took the undeniable position that the imagination controlled the making and perfection of character, "as a man thinks, so is he," and in an admirable illustration of this idea he pictured, analyzed and commented upon the well known and universally popular work of E. L. Stevenson, "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

This allegory portrayed the dark side of the picture, while the bright side was magnificently and beautifully illustrated, in the orator's own inimitable style by Nathaniel Hawthorne's delightful description of "The Stone Face."

The lecturer, a tall, handsome man of stately bearing, in unassuming and entirely free from stage or platform affectation—in fact, he is a perfect and true type of the southern gentleman, scholar and orator. Prof. Gordon possesses in an abundant and eminent degree of that rare yet eagerly sought for power and equilibrium of mind, discretion and judgment seldom found in the platform lecturer of the day. Possessing these combinations of talent, of a delicate yet lofty character, he is now, and will hereafter be in this country a mighty force in his chosen field of labor and an unwavering power in everything that is helpful, laudable, progressive and christianlike. Should opportunity present, go and hear this man, and when you shall have gone, "be silent that you may hear," the words of advice, learning and wisdom which so eloquently fall from his lips.

MINISTERS' AND MEMBERS.

Meeting of Little River Baptist Association in Session.

The Ministers, and Members' Meeting of the Little River Baptist Association will meet at Ceratan Springs to-day and will be in session three days. A large number of Hopkinsville Baptists will be in attendance. A few went down on the early train this morning and others will leave at 11:30.

A Good Cough Medicine.

It speaks well for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy when druggists use it in their own families in preference to any other. I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for the past five years with complete satisfaction to myself and customers, says Druggist J. G. Smith, Van Etten, N. Y. "I have always used it in my own family both for ordinary coughs and colds and for the cough following a gripe, and find it very efficacious. Sold by all druggists."

FIFTY LOST.

Getting At The Facts of The Big of West Virginia Flood.

The First Estimates Were a Great Deal Too High.

Bluefield, W. Va., June 26.—The West Virginia flood situation has not many new developments, but it is authentically stated that the loss of life has been greatly overestimated, although the loss of property can hardly be estimated. The most conservative estimate obtainable places the loss of life at about 50, a greater part of whom are colored miners and their families.

A great many more are missing and are supposed to have been swept away. There are great piles of debris and it will take many days to find all the bodies. The Norfolk and Western Railway company will lose, at a conservative estimate, $500,000, not taking into consideration the delay of traffic, etc.

Their double track is practically washed away for a distance of six miles, and at least 3,500 men are at work day and night repairing road-bed and removing drift. The Cumberland valley electric light car has arrived and will be used to prosecute the work at night. It will be four days before any traffic can be resumed. The loss to the coal operators will reach about $400,000 outside of the delay at the mines in loading, etc. The property loss by private parties is very heavy and cannot be estimated at this time. It is thought it will reach the million dollar mark.

ANOTHER CLOUDBURST

Breaks Over the Unfortunate Elkhorn Valley.

Bluefield, W. Va., June 26.—The Elkhorn valley of West Virginia was visited last night by another cloudburst, which washed away much of the repair work done by the railway company and caused greater destruction at Pocahontas than the previous flood. Communication with the stricken district is being slowly re-established and it is now said the number of dead will exceed 100. Many of the victims are women and children. The people are destitute and in danger of starving. What little relief has been sent them has been by means of pack mules. Negro miners have become drunk from whisky found in barrels lodged in the drift, and much vandalism and fighting is reported.

QUARRY ACCIDENT.

Two Men Badly Hurt and One May Die.

Fragments of Rocks Hurled In All Directions and Pieces Buried in Flesh.

An explosion occurred at Dalton's rock quarry Monday night in which two colored employees, Jim Hassell and Dan Poleman, were badly injured. The men were working with the night shift. Poleman was shoveling stone and Hassell was preparing to send his sledge in breaking a large stone. At the first blow he struck, the rock was blown into many pieces. The flying fragments struck the two men with great force, knocking them down. Hassell's body was terribly cut and pieces of stone were imbedded in the flesh. It was thought at first that he had been fatally injured, but he is still alive and may recover. Poleman's face was cut and he was otherwise injured, but will recover.

There had been no blasting in the part of the quarry for twenty-four hours prior to the explosion and the cause of the accident is a mystery. It is possible that a dynamite cap or some other explosive had been accidentally dropped on the rock.

IT IS A PITY SO FEW WOMEN Are Entirely Free From Pelvic Catarrh.

Miss Anna Carsten, Clayton, Ill.

Miss Anna Carsten, Clayton, Ill., says: "Your Personals did me so much good. I believe I should have been dead by this time had I not used it. I am feeling so well now. I have not taken any medicine for four or five months. I can cheerfully recommend Personals to my friends."

Everywhere the people, especially the women, are praising Personals as a remedy for all forms of catarrhal difficulties. Rosa Tyler, Vice President of the Illinois Woman's Alliance, writes from 910 East Sixteenth street, Chicago, Ill., the following:

"During the past year I gradually lost flesh and strength until I was unable to perform my work properly. I tried different remedies, and finally Personals effected my cure. It gave me new life and strength. I cannot speak too highly of it."

The extreme sensitiveness of the mucous lining of every organ of a woman's body is well known to physicians. This explains why, in part at least, so few women are entirely free from catarrh. Personals cures catarrh wherever it is located.

Send for free catarrh book. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

CHARACTER AND THE HAND.

French Author Draws on Well Known People for Examples.

The hands of 30 prominent persons are reproduced in a volume, "Character and the Hand," printed in Paris and just received by Samuel P. Avery, the well-known collector. The work deals with the relations between the form and lines of the hand and the character of the individual, and the author draws many deductions from the network on the palms, the shape of the fingers and the form of the nails.

He divides the various kinds of hands into groups, designated as follows: Intellectual hands, brilliant hands, passionate hands, practical hands, vulgar hands, insignificant hands.

"The hand of the gorilla," writes the author, "is an instrument of quick destruction," and the short, muscular fingers of the brute bear out the author's statement. The hand of a criminal, which follows, bears a striking resemblance to that of the gorilla.

Illustrating the "brilliant hand" appears a cut of that of Puvion de Chavannes, the fingers being narrow, but blunt at the ends. The hand of Jules Duret, sculptor, is muscular, the fingers short and the thumb stubby in the extreme. Bluntness of fingers, with a broad palm, comparatively free of lines, characterizes the hand of Carous-Duran, the painter.

Most of the hands of artists shown in the book exhibit similar characteristics. That of Whistler, however, is an exception. The fingers are slender and tapering at the ends. The hand is covered both on the back and palm by a network of irregular lines, and is typical, the author says, of the extremely brilliant hand, combined with the qualities of sarcasm and aggressiveness.

Contrary to what would be expected, the hands of Sarasate, Alexandre Petchinkoff and other violinists show short, plump fingers, more like the typical sculptor's hands than the others in the book.

Among the "passionate hands" is that of Monnet-Sully, the tragedian, which is one of the most attractive, as far as appearance goes, of all those formed. The fingers are well formed and the fine lines that mark the palm accentuate the graceful contour of the member.

The hands of Emile Zola, Alexandre Dumas, fils, and Bouguereau are included in the "practical hands."

A specific chapter is devoted to the hands of women. "Maude Gonne's hand," the author says, "is that of an affectionate, enthusiastic and reasoning woman, prudent and adroit in love. She has coquetry, taste and grace, and makes up her mind quickly."

"In the hand of Mme. Rejane," he writes, "we observe elegance and also force. Note that the passion here is secondary, the hand being conical in shape; she profits also by a spirit of tenderness."

COPY OF THE LORD'S PRAYER.

Part of an Ancient Document Discovered in Greece.

A modest but interesting addition has recently been made to the early documents of the history of Christianity, says the Tablet. This time it comes, not from Egypt, but from Greece. Nor is it a manuscript, but an unassuming fragment of a clay shield, found at Megara, and now in the national museum at Athens. What remains (about a third of the whole area) is some 54 by 44 inches in size, and contains part of the Greek text of the Lord's Prayer, of the words: "Give us this day our daily bread." The Doxology is absent at the end. After the words "from the evil one" followed a short phrase, the beginning of which is broken away, but which ended "O Lord," probably "Help," or "Save, O Lord." The whole is closed by the Christian name, Dr. Knopf, who publishes the fragment in the "Mittheilungen" of the German Archaeological institute, notes that the text was scratched on the wet clay before it was baked; hence the shield must have been made actually for the purpose of receiving the inscription; we have not to do with a mere graffiti. From the style of the lettering, combined with the form of the cruz monogrammatica, and the absence of the Doxology, he concludes that the text belongs to the fourth century, A. D.

WHAT BAXTER SHOT.

Moral: Don't Draw Hasty Conclusions From Insufficient Premises.

Wife (to husband who has just returned home)—Any news in town?

Husband—Nothing.

"Of course not. Oh, well, there is never any news for a woman unless she finds it out for herself."

After a long silence the husband breaks in with:

"If does seem to me that people ought to be more careful."

"What about?"

"I was thinking of something that occurred last night. Jack Baxter and his family sat out in the garden until quite late, and when Baxter got up and went in he had not noticed that his little son had slipped away. Just as Baxter stepped into his room he heard something under the bed—in fact, saw something—and, thinking that a burglar had secreted himself there, he seized a revolver and fired under the bed, and—"

"Merciful goodness! and shot his little son?"

"Who said he shot his son?"

"You said his son went under the bed."

"I didn't."

"What did you say?"

"I said that he did not notice his son when he went into the room."

"And wasn't the boy under the bed?"

"No; cat was under the bed."

"You are in a most disagreeable temper this evening, William."

"Why so? Just because the boy did not go under the bed and get shot? I had nothing to do with it, I assure you."—London Tit-Bits.

HORSE CONFINED FOR YEARS

Animal Did Not Know How to Act When Released.

A horse with hoofs abnormally long, that has not been out of its stall but once in the last eight years, is one of the curiosities in Clinton, Ia. It is the property of an eccentric character. It is said he is keeping the animal confined to the stall in order to let its hoofs grow so he can dispose of the horse to some show manager. It also said he is afraid of the horse, and does not dare to take it out of the barn.

The horse is a handsome black stallion, and were it accustomed to the harness would bring a good price. In its present condition the owner has been offered $200 for the animal, but he turns a deaf ear to all offers.

Eight years ago, when the horse was one year old, it was placed in its present quarters, and but once in all these years has the animal been out of its stall. This was five years ago, when a fire threatened to destroy the barn. Some of the neighbors knocked the door off its hinges and cut the halter, releasing the animal, which was driven out of the barn after considerable difficulty.

When outside the horse staggered and reeled like an intoxicated person. It had little use of its legs. All objects seemed strange to it, and the light had a blinding effect on the horse's eyes. It had no regard for objects, and in trying to enter the barn did not realize that it must go through a door, but attempted to walk through the boards.—N. Y. News.

A SORCERER SCARE.

Kept French Villagers in Their Homes for Several Evenings.

A young farmer living near Chavigny, a village in France, was attacked with consumption some time ago and, as the local physician was unable to do him any good, his father applied for advice to a soothsayer, who duly visited the patient, but proved of such small service to him that he disappeared a few days, says the New York Herald.

To the discomfited father the soothsayer then said: "Do not blame me, for it is a sorcerer who has killed your son by casting an evil eye on him. This mischief is done, but fortunately, I can prevent the sorcerer from doing any more. I clearly foresee that this evil-doer will return to the village some evening at sunset, and that he will surely again cast the evil eye on the first person whom he meets at that time. If you and I spread this news broadcast, it is not likely that he will meet anyone as he enters the village, and thus your son will be his only victim."

Within an hour or two everyone in Chavigny had heard this strange prediction, and as a result there was not a human being in the streets when the sun set that evening. For several days afterward the people looked themselves in their houses at evening, and only now, it is said, are the more skeptical among them beginning to disregard the soothsayer's injunction.

POOR OLD HUBBY.

He Had Limitations and Could Not Remember Everything.

He had some very nice nights ago a bit tired from a busy day's work, and his wife waited until he had got off his overcoat and then she said: "London Tit-Bits."

"Did you get that piece of silk I asked you to bring?" she inquired, seeing that he had not laid it before her.

"Yes, dear; I left it out there in the hall."

"Did you get the pins?"

"Yes, dear."

"And the ribbon?"

"Yes."

"And Bobbie's shoes?"

"Yes."

"And a heath-broom?"

"Yes."

"And a wick for the kitchen lamp?"

"Yes."

"And some matches?"

"Yes; they are with the other bundles."

"And did you see the man about the coal?"

"Yes; it will be up on Monday."

"And the man to fix the grate in the dining-room?"

"Yes; he's coming as soon as he can."

"And did you go and pay the gas bill?"

"Yes, dear."

"And—oh, yes, did you order a new shovel for the kitchen?"

"N—no," he hesitated; "I forgot it."

"Good gracious!" she exclaimed. "What did you do that for? You know we needed that shovel, and I told you about it the very first thing when you went to town this morning. I think you men are the most forgetful and most careless creatures that ever lived."

And she was cross for the rest of the evening.

Curfew at Both Ends.

In the picturesque valley of Allegheny, Warwickshire, an ancient custom, which is found to linger here and there, is still observed. The church bell is rung at five o'clock every morning in the summer and at six o'clock in the winter, in order to arouse sleeping villagers and enable them to start work in good time. The curfew bell is also tolled at eight o'clock each evening.

KENTUCKY OIL.

Excellent Prospect at Sunnybrook as Reported by Experts.

Louisville, Ky., June 27.—The Posts special says: Prof. Arthur Miller, Prof. of geology at State College, returned yesterday from Wayne County, where he has been looking over the oil fields near the Sunnybrook wells. He says that there are excellent prospects for the wells, now being bored to strike oil in the same line as that in the Sunnybrook wells.

Some of these are nearly finished and expected to come in within the next few days, and should they do so, the excitement will become intense in the field. A thing peculiar to the Sunnybrook field says Prof. Miller is that the oil is being found below the slate, while the other wells have been found above the slate.

J. R. Daugherty, of Marietta, O., the expert sent by the Cumberland Oil Company at Lexington, to examine its properties in Wayne County, returned here to make his report yesterday.

"I looked over the field at the Sunnybrook wells, near which the Cumberland Oil Company has twenty-two pieces of property, and I find the prospect for a large field as promising as I have yet seen. St. Louis, Mo.
DEAR SIR:—I suffered ten years with severe kidney and bladder troubles and at times was unable to work. I was advised to try your Texas Wonder and after using one fourth of one bottle I passed a large gravel and I have never suffered since passing the same three years ago, and I have recommended it to many others who reported themselves cured. I most heartily recommend it to all sufferers from kidney or bladder diseases.

NO MORE STAMPS.

After July 1 Messages Will Go Without Revenue.

The war revenue law requiring a cent documentary stamp affixed to each telegram is repealed, to take effect July 1, 1901. Therefore, on and after July 1, 1901, it will not be necessary to affix a stamp to money transfers drawn in the United States, but payable out of the United States. The sender of a money transfer drawn in the United States must attach to his application therefor a two-cent documentary stamp for each $100 transferred.

The summary of the above is therefore as follows:

On all telegrams a revenue stamp need not be attached.

On all money transfers drawn in, and payable to the United States, a revenue stamp need not be attached.

On all money transfers drawn in the United States and payable out of the United States, a two-cent documentary stamp must be attached for each $100 or fraction thereof.

No stamp will be necessary on checks.

RELISHED BY A FRENCHMAN.

Entomologist Recommends Insects as an Article of Food.

A French entomologist, M. Daguin, recommends insects as an article of food. He speaks with authority, having not only read through the whole literature of insect eating, but having himself tasted several hundreds of species raw, boiled, fried, broiled, roasted and hashed.

He has even eaten spiders prepared according to the following recipe: "Take a plump spider, remove the legs and skin. Rub over with butter and swallow."

However, he does not recommend them, but this may be prejudice on his part. He states two objections to spiders. They are not insects, and they feed on animal food.

Cockroaches are a foundation for a delicious soup. M. Daguin follows the recipe given by Senator Testelin in a speech delivered in the senate on February 12, 1878: "Pound your cockroaches in a mortar, put in a sieve and pour in boiling water or beef stock. Connoisseurs prefer this to real bisque."

M. Wilfrid de Fonville, the French scientist, prefers the cockroaches in the larval state. The perfect insect may be shelled and eaten like a shrimp; that way Dr. Gastier, member of the national assembly of 1848, used to eat them.

Caterpillars are a light food of easy digestion. Not only African native races, but Frenchmen appreciate them. M. de Lalande, astronomer, had dinner every Saturday with the zoologist, Quatremer d'Alphonville. Mme. d'Alphonville, who knew his taste, collected in the afternoon all the caterpillars she could find in her garden and served them on a plate to her guest.

The most popular insect food is the locust. It is eaten fried, dried in the sun, ground in flour, broiled with rice in milk or fried and served, boiled. The Jesuit Father Cambon thinks that locust flour might become popular in Europe as a condiment.

Travelers' opinions on locusts differ. Amie's finds they taste like shrimps, Niebuhr like sardines, Livingston like caviare.—London News.

PETER SCORED.

Joe That Did Not Turn Out Quite as Planned.

The firm of Quills & Scribblers employed a typist. In the office there were also six clerks, who, with the exception of one named Peter Brown, showed a sort of sneaking affection for the typewriting girl. Peter, like a certain famous soldier, had an aversion to everything feminine because—he couldn't help it. He had managed to steer clear of the typist for a considerable time, until one morning he met her face to face, and was obliged to stammer out: "Good morning," a thing he had never done before.

This little incident, says London Tit-Bits, came under the observation of Bob Dawson, a waggish fellow clerk, who sorely teased Peter on his weak points. Bob wrought out a plot. With the assistance of a chum he composed a gushing love letter, purporting to have been written by Peter, and this epistle was dispatched to the fair typist, along with a ring valued at a few pence.

Next day Peter received the following note:

"Dearest Peter: Yours to hand. I accept your offer of marriage. The ring is a beauty. Yours until death, Amelia."

This note completely nonplused Peter. It also gave him the dumps for several days.

"Cheer up, Peter!" cried Bob Dawson one day; "we've got our slippers ready, old chap."

"When is it to come off?" inquired another clerk.

"What the dickens are you talking about, you idiots?" growled Peter.

"Why, the wedding, of course," replied Dawson.

Then it dawned upon Peter that he had been made the victim of a huge joke. But he had his revenge. Six months later Peter actually married the fair typist, but the clerks in the employ of Messrs. Quills & Scribblers didn't receive an invitation to the wedding.

A Novelty in Alarm Clocks.

A noiseless alarm clock would prove a boon to a host of sufferers from unreasonable din. The suggestion is made that a silent alarm can be given by focusing an electric lamp upon the head of the person to be awakened and arranging a switch so that the current, by the clock, is directed upon the head of the person to be awakened. It is claimed that the flash of light would invariably arouse the sleeper.

Celebration Week.

(From Our Special Correspondent.)

Franklin, Ky., July 1, 1901.

EDITOR KENTUCKIAN:—Throughout the country there will be a celebration of the declaration of independence. Last week there was a celebration of the 25th anniversary of the discovery of Osteopathy. This celebration of the independence of the human body from the pills, purges and nostrums of the medical world is a most important fact in the health of the present day.

On every hand there is evidence of decadence in drug practice. Every discovery of any merit is in the realm of hygienic treatment. Every work of real merit issued by a medical man to-day decry the universal drugging. The only reason a medical doctor will continue to give drugs, is his ignorance of other and more modern methods.

The dependence today is in the drugless agencies, and the most popular and successful of all the drugless forces is Osteopathy. To this the people are turning and the wisdom is manifest in the large percentage of success which attends the practice of Osteopathy. No other profession or system of healing can show such a large proportion of cures. For information and literature, address, SOUTHERN SCHOOL OF OSTEOPATHY, (INC.) KENTUCKY.

The Tennessee Press Association will probably have to call off its contemplated Buffalo trip, as satisfactory arrangements for the trip cannot be made.

William E. Curtis, special correspondent of the Chicago Record-Herald, is enroute to Norway and Sweden to write a series of descriptive letters during the summer months.

We acknowledge the compliment of an invitation to a reception at the Fulton Leader office on Wednesday June 26th. Col. Mott Ayers, the publisher, has been putting in some new machinery and wanted his friends to come in and help him open a keg of nails or something. Sorry we couldn't be on hand.

The Democratic party, which is essentially the party of decency and good government in Christian county, is to be congratulated upon the exposures made in the Western Asylum. The harm to a party responsible for management comes when the opposite party has to turn on the light. In this case a Democratic judge, more mindful of his oath of office than other officials, ordered the investigation: a Democratic attorney conducted it to a successful conclusion, and a jury with a majority of its members Democrats did the rest. The Democratic party is always equal to

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or tingling in the ears, and the ear is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, the last stage of an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Rheumatism

the task of correcting its own faults. Better, a thousand times better, to have this done inside the party than to cover up rottenness and make neglect of duty an issue in a State campaign. With the honor of the State and the good of its party at heart, the KENTUCKIAN has maintained that the truth should be brought to light. There have been slanderous insinuations of disloyalty to the Democratic party, and still bolder efforts to deter, but the principle laid down by the KENTUCKIAN months ago and persistently fought for has been upheld and the investigation the Governor would not order has been made for him and the men appointed by him to official positions in this county, with scarcely an exception, have been passed up to him for executive protection or to be dealt with as he may otherwise deem proper. In the meantime, the Democratic party still lives, stronger and in better fighting condition than ever.

Law and Honor Upheld.

More than two months ago the then Superintendent of the Western Kentucky Asylum for the Insane, Dr. E. B. McCormick, called the attention of the Board of Commissioners to the fact that a lawless state of affairs existed in the institution over which he presided. These disclosures were laid before Gov. Beckham by the Board and an investigation asked. No investigation was made, but Dr. McCormick was asked to resign his position, which he declined to do. The Board then unanimously demanded an investigation. This was still denied and Dr. McCormick was removed from office without being given an opportunity to be heard, although the Board of Commissioners, the business men of Hopkinsville, a mass meeting of citizens and ninety per cent of the employees of the Asylum, all sent protest after protest to the Governor. The KENTUCKIAN at the time was made the organ of the scandal was too big to be suppressed and that it could not escape the attention of the grand jury. Circuit court met the 1st Monday in June with the disgraceful charges still ignored by the administration, and not until the main witnesses were held out of the way did the State Inspector, a few days ago, begin a perfunctory star-chamber inquiry into one branch of the corruption alleged to exist. This so-called investigation was never completed so far as the public is advised, but is still awaiting the attention of the administration.

When the grand jury was empaneled, a fearless and impartial circuit judge directed that body to investigate fully the condition of affairs known to exist. The public is familiar with the obstacles immediately placed in the way. Witnesses disappeared as if swallowed up by the earth. Others were afflicted with a complete loss of memory. The members of the jury were subjected to an impudent canvass and called upon to withstand pathetic appeals. The Republicans were told that it was a matter of prejudice and the Democrats were told that it would ruin the Democratic party. The court officials were beset with appeals to suppress the facts, but the members of the grand jury were men who could not be turned from the path of duty and while the charges of immorality and wholesale indictment were returned for violations of statutory laws, honor to Judge Cassin and to the twelve good men who have taken their action vindictive justice came now to deny them, protect the honor of Kentucky and uphold the laws of the State. These trustees, seven Democrats and five Republicans, are entitled to the lasting gratitude of the people of Christian county, who have blushed with shame at the charges they were now to deny. They are entitled to the hospitals of the State for the treatment of the unfortunate and afflicted, located in a law-abiding community, had been ordered to a gambling hell, with the knowledge and tacit approval of high State officials.

COUNCIL NO. 8.

In Session in Hopkinsville This Week.

Today Will be the Gala Day of the Big Occasion for the Colored People Here:

The twenty-first annual session of State Grand Council No. 8, of the Independent Order of Good Samaritans and Daughters of Samaria of Kentucky is being held in this city this week. The sessions are being held in the Virginia street Baptist church and delegates from all parts of the State are in attendance.

Wednesday evening the annual sermon was delivered by Rev. J. B. Winrow, of Bowling Green.

This evening the grand banquet and installation will be conducted at Friendship Hall. Each program will be interspersed with interesting papers, recitations, solos, choruses, duets, etc.

Today will be the gala day of the occasion. A grand procession will form at Friendship Hall at 10 a. m. and march through the principal streets with sisters and juveniles in hacks, led by a silver cornet band to the park, where they will be entertained with speeches by Rev. W. T. Silvey, of Providence; W. H. Chambers, of Indianapolis; H. J. E. Wood, Danville; Rev. C. C. Vaughn, ex-N. G. C. of Russellville; G. W. Darden, Montgomery, and Rev. Wm. Jones.

Unnecessary Loss of Time.

Mr. W. S. Wheden, Cashier of the First National Bank of Pinterest, Iowa, in a recent letter gives some experience with a carpenter in his employ, that will be of value to other mechanics. He says: "I had a carpenter working for me who was obliged to stop work for several days on account of being troubled with diarrhoea. I mentioned to him that I had been similarly troubled and that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy had cured me. He bought a bottle of it from the druggist here and informed me that one dose cured him, and he is again at his work." For sale by all druggists.

A HEARTY RECEPTION

Madisonville Citizens Will Make Great Preparations To Entertain The Editors.

Madisonville, Ky., June 26.—A meeting of citizens will be held here Monday evening for the purpose of making arrangements to entertain the Kentucky Press Association, which will meet here on the 1st of August. Committees will be appointed to provide the mode of entertainment, and a cordial greeting is assured the visitors.

Mr. W. C. Morton, President of Morton's Bank, has donated the use of his new opera house for the association meetings.

You may as well expect to run a steam engine without water as to find an active, energetic man with a torpid liver and you may know that his liver is torpid when he does not relish his food or feels dull and languid after eating, often has headache and sometimes dizziness. A few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets will restore his liver to its normal functions, renew his vitality, improve his digestion and make him feel like a new man. Price, 25 cents. Samples free at any drug store.

Business Men Showing Lively Interest in the Western Excursion.

The second Louisville business men's excursion to Western Kentucky on July 2-3 promises to be a greater success than the trip through the Bluegrass. Business men are enthusiastic over the prospects for the trip and are rapidly sending in their names. Mayor Weaver will accompany the party and introduce the speaker at each town. A number of good speakers will be secured who will talk up Louisville's business interests in every town. Marmaduke Bowden will boom the Inter-State Fair. The Illinois Central has men at work on an elegantly furnished baggage car which will carry the baggage supply.

HIS LIFE SAVED

By Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera And Diarrhoea Remedy.

"I am sure that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at one time saved my life," says A. E. Lafaille, of Gregory Landing, Clark county, Missouri. "I was in such bad shape the doctors said I could not live. When I was at the lowest ebb, one of my neighbors brought in a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and I took it and got instant relief. I soon got up and around. That was nine years ago and I am still in good health. Since then the medicine has always been in my house and always will be. It is the best on earth." For sale by all druggists.

FATALLY HURT.

Farmer the Victim of a Runaway Accident.

Owensboro, Ky., June 26.—George Baker, a prominent farmer of the Spice Knob neighborhood, about six miles east of this city, was perhaps fatally hurt in a runaway. FOOT CRUSHED.

Railroad Man's Bad Accident at Red River.

E. J. Parker, of Evansville, an employee of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, at work on the Red River bridge below Guthrie, was badly injured Wednesday. A huge and heavily loaded derrick in some way caught one of his feet and crushed the bones in a horrible manner. Parker was a man of powerful physique, weighing 200 pounds, and a very popular man on the road. He suffered great pain and was carried to his home in Evansville yesterday morning. It is hoped that the injured foot will not have to be amputated.

HEAVY OFFERINGS

Tobacco Market This Week Was Irregularly Lower.

The tobacco market this week was irregularly lower, the average decline amounting to about twenty-five cents on the hundred.

The offerings amounted to about 800 hogsheds, the largest of the season and consisted principally of the medium grades, though some good tobacco made its appearance on the breaks. Receipts are growing lighter with each week.

Hopkinsville is famous for furnishing the State Grand council with state chiefs. The late I. H. Jones filled the position two years as chief and Rev. James L. Allensworth, a member of the county, filled the position two years. The council includes the whole of Ky., Jeffersonville and New Albany, Ind., and Cincinnati, Ohio.

FIRE AT MAYFIELD

Destroys Thirty Dwellings and Seven Tobacco Factories.

Loss is Over $150,000 With $60,000 Insurance—Many Thrown Out of Work.

Mayfield, Ky., June 26.—Mayfield was visited by the worst fire in its history last night. Seven large tobacco factories were destroyed, and at the same time thirty dwellings went up in smoke. The loss is about $200,000, and the insurance is not more than $60,000. For a time it seemed as if the whole town would go, as the water works were out of fix, and nothing could be done to stop the march of the flames. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Several hundred men and women are thrown out of employment and many are homeless.

BLOOD POISONING

Causes Death of Confederate Veteran Near Kennedy.

Mr. W. D. Smith, a prominent citizen of near Kennedy, died last Saturday, aged 55 years. About two months ago he received a scratch on one of his limbs. Erysipelas set up and later blood poisoning developed, causing his death. Deceased joined the Confederate army when only fourteen years of age and served through the war. He was a member of Forbes' Bivouac Confederate Veterans and was buried in the uniform he had made to wear to the Memphis reunion. He is survived by a wife and three children.

Awarded Numerous Prizes at the Guthrie Contest.

The Old Fiddlers' contest at Guthrie last night was a big success in every way. Notwithstanding the extremely warm weather the Opera House in which it was held was packed and standing room was strictly at a premium. Reserved seats were sold at 75 cents each and a very handsome sum was realized. The net proceeds were given to Walton College at that place. There were about thirty contestants and nearly as many prizes, some of them very handsome as well as useful, awarded. The Hopkinsville quartet "pulled down" a half dozen of the best premiums.

SUPPLEMENT. Hopkinsville Kentuckian.

HOPKINSVILLE, KENTUCKY, JUNE 1901.

GREAT GOOD ROADS CONVENTION.

Will Take Place In Hopkinsville, Ky., July 10th and 11th.

The newspapers of Louisville have been treating Hopkinsville very unfairly in regard to the Good Roads convention, taking a sly advantage and attempting to build up the Louisville convention at the expense of Hopkinsville, by publishing articles from day to day announcing to the public that the Louisville convention is to be a state affair while Hopkinsville will hold only a district convention, and these sort of articles have been sent out over the state for publication in the various county papers, many of which have been deceived by them.

While this was unfair it was unnecessary, for Louisville would have had just as many people at her convention without doing that as she will have now. In the first place, the Louisville crowd began their tactics along this line by getting Gov. Beckham to issue a proclamation in regard to the convention at Louisville, and then they announced that the fact that the governor had issued a proclamation about the convention and when it convened it appropriated $1,250, the city council added $300 and then the citizens by private subscription raised something like $700 more, making $2,250 to be used in entertaining the visitors to the convention and in paying the expense of the sample mile of road. Thus it will be seen that Hopkinsville people have put more than twice as much money up for their convention than Louisville has for what she has the gall to announce is a State affair. The delegates to Hopkinsville will be entertained as only Hopkinsville people know how to entertain. The delegates to Louisville will entertain themselves if they get entertained at all.

More actual good will come from the Hopkinsville convention than from the Louisville one, as people in a city the size of Louisville do not usually take much interest in such things as the improvement of the country roads, for they use them little and do no hauling over them and are not locally interested in the retail trade of the farmers of their county, depending upon the railroads and wholesale trade for the growth of their city. Counties of Western Kentucky can derive far more benefit by sending their delegates to Hopkinsville and they should do so. Local pride in their section of the State should cause them to do so, especially as the benefits to be derived will be equally as great if not much greater. Then again the cost to the delegates will be far less.

WORK PROGRESSING.

As the date for the holding of the great Good Roads Convention draws nearer interest in the big event increases. A great many of Christian county's largest and most prosperous farmers are just now beginning to realize how much the convention means to everybody in the county, and especially to the farmer, whom it will finally lift out of the mud which has for so many years retarded his progress. This is the result of the Good Roads conventions everywhere else that they have been held, this will be the result in Christian and other counties in this section.

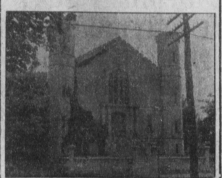

It lifts the people out of the mud, because it brings them to a realization of their true condition and shows them how easily they can remedy it, and that's all that is necessary. The people nowhere have had roads because they want them. They have had roads because they have never had any other kind, and therefore do not realize how really bad they are, and as soon as they are brought to see the matter as it really, actually exists, they are at once anxious to remedy the trouble and they lose no time in doing so.

The good roads conventions bring them to see matters just as they are—and that's the sole object of the conventions.

The history of the good roads movement shows that everywhere a convention has been held and a sample road built and explained to the people good has immediately followed, the people having seen what a condition they were in, having seen what a good road really is and how easily it can be constructed and what great advantages are to be reaped from improved public highways become as enthusiastic on the subject as they were before cold and indifferent and they are not satisfied again with their old condition but at once set to work to secure good roads and as a result everybody in the community is benefited.

The states of Mississippi and Alabama never had a good public road in them, the people didn't want good roads and cared so little about the matter that they would not even discuss the subject of road improvement, regarding it as a mere waste of time. A month or more ago the experts who are to bring the Good Roads train to Hopkinsville on July 5th visited a number of points in both Mississippi and Alabama, showed the people their true condition as to public highways, convinced them of the incalculable benefits to be derived from better roads, built them sample roads and showed how easy it was to have perfect roads, and now as a result the people all over both states are wild on the subject of good roads and will hardly discuss anything else, so anxious are they to at once begin the work of improvement. The New Orleans Picayune says that the people of Alabama have become so enthusiastic on the subject that Governor Longino in his next message to the Alabama legislature will urge upon that body the necessity for the state taking the matter in hand and have all the roads in the state reconstructed by expert road-builders just as rapidly as the money to pay for the work can be spared, and it is said that he is in favor of the legislature passing a bill levying a state tax to be used in rebuilding the public roads—and the people of the entire state are reported as being in favor of such a scheme. Such has been the result that has followed the Good Roads movement everywhere. The history of all reforms shows that all it is ever necessary to do is to convince the people of their error, make them realize their real condition, and they are always willing, yes, anxious to set matters aright with just as little delay as possible.

Christian Church, Ninth Street.

It is not hard to convince any man of the slightest intelligence that it is to his advantage to have good roads and that good roads will lessen the cost of getting his produce to the markets and will therefore leave him more money as the profits from his business, be that business what it may. The only trouble comes in in being able to get him to listen to reason and think, to get him once interested,—after that's once done, it is very plain sailing.

The object of the Good Roads convention at Hopkinsville is to get the people of Christian and surrounding counties to think, to get them once interested in the matter of road improvement and the work be done, for their intelligence is fully relied upon to carry out work as it should be done if they are once brought to realize its importance to themselves and sterility. Kentuckians never do things by halves—especially in the western end of the state. It can not be the slightest doubt that Christian and the neighboring states will reap immense benefit from the Good Roads convention, it is the duty of each and every citizen in southwestern Kentucky to delegates to Hopkinsville—and it will be best to send as delegates as possible of the fiscal courts and overseers and supervisors, officers whose duty it is to manage the roads in the several counties. The county judges should be delegates. Let these men stand by the example of road built by the states and have it thoroughly explained to them, then let them attend the convention on July 10 and 11 and hear the matter of roads discussed by engineers and experts in various lines and when they return to their homes they will not only be in position to talk to and secure people of their home counties to get for good roads, but with the advice gained they will all be able to have good roads constructed at a cost under their supervision and in a way repay thousands of times the money that it cost the people of their county to send them to the convention. It is the duty of every county judge in every county in western Kentucky to take up this matter at once and appoint competent men to attend the convention, who are interested in the betterment of the public highways and will be certain to come to Hopkinsville and see the work of road building going on. Let each and every man who reads this article make it his business to at once see his county judge of his county and get on his taking action at once.

REAT GOOD ROADS CONVENTION.

A CRYING NEED.

Public men, preachers, lawyers, clerics, newspaper men, in fact every man who has ever given the matter of good roads a thought realizes the time has arrived when the state can no longer allow the roads to remain as they have been in the past century. The Louisville Courier-Journal in discussing this matter a few days ago said: Beyond question there is nothing will be of so much benefit to the people of Kentucky as the improvement of their transportation facilities, and the public highways the groundwork, the basis, of the whole system. We need more roads, and we need trolley roads, and the demand for these can never be ignored, but, above all, must have better county roads. Enable farmers to market their products more cheaply, to promote comfort and convenience and to the sociability of rural life. Good roads would be the best machinery that could be placed in the state, and they will elevate the moral tone and increase the wealth of any community. When one makes an estimate of the saving in the cost of marketing the crops the substitution of macadamized ways for the wretched dirt roads, the wonder is that these roads have been tolerated; to say nothing of the vast improvement the better roads would give to the desirability of life on the farm, where the bulk of our citizenship resides.

The convention, if well attended, delegates from over the state, will do more to arouse public interest in the cause of good roads than anything else that could be desired. The model roads that will be constructed by the Government experts will be a valuable object lesson in road making is a science that requires apprenticeship, simple as it seems. Best of all, the convention will afford an opportunity to organize public sentiment on the necessity of securing proper legislation. The obsolete method of working the roads by "warning in," the taxpayers would be abolished in favor of tax levies and the employment of responsible contractors. The State should make an appropriation for the encouragement of road building, and a state engineer should be provided to supervise the work to which the State contributes. Provision ought to be made by the counties that would prevent the supervisors from being bestowed on politicians. They should be given to men who will build good roads from the start and not waste the money as it has been wasted in the past. Millions of dollars are spent under the present system, with no appreciable betterment of the highways. It is time these self evident truths should be recognized and steps taken not only to raise money, but to see that it is spent to good purpose.

"The first essential is to arouse and keep alive public interest. This can be done at the Good Roads convention if the county officers will do their part in the selection of delegates."

MR. MOORE TALKS.

Some days ago the following newspaper interview was had with President Moore about roads:

"I am the president of the National Good Roads association and we are working for good roads. Congress appropriated $20,000 for the purpose of introducing good roads into the states. I have in my train 14 skilled engineers, among them Mr. Charles T. Harrison, a government road engineer, all of them at the expense of the association. We have all the machines for road making. This machinery alone cost about $75,000.

"My object in coming is to introduce to Kentucky the proper way of making a good dirt road. You see, your state has about 25,000 miles of roads and most of them are in a miserable condition. It is astonishing how few macadam roads you have. Now, a good dirt road can be built for from $300 to $500 a mile, and by proper care can be kept in good condition for an indefinite time. One of the best ways to treat a dirt road is to sprinkle it with hot oil soon after it is built.

"The oil gradually seeps to the bottom of the road and makes it compact and waterproof and gives it a firm base. The macadam road can be made for from $2,000 to $7,000 a mile and is, of course, out of the financial reach of many rural districts. The gravel road we build is not so costly and I am not in favor of it unless it can be made with a fine foundation.

"The chief object of the association of which I am president is to arouse the interest of the people in this movement so that the legislature may take action in the matter. I traveled over about 900 miles of your state and I did not see a single good macadam road. In other states of which I am speaking the legislature appoints what might be called a highway inspector. It is his duty to look after the condition of the roads and he is solely responsible to the state for their condition. This has been done in Massachusetts, and the result is that the state has the best roads in the union. It is also done in New Jersey, which can boast of roads almost as good as those of Massachusetts.

"We shall hold three conventions in Kentucky. One at Louisville, another at Owensboro, and another at Hopkinsville."

Mr. Moore says that the road he will build is to be in no sense a "model" road, but a modern road, constructed according to modern ideas. Mr. Moore said it would take ten years to construct dirt roads in Kentucky along modern lines, but he thinks that when the work is once started it will be carried to completion.

CONVENTION ARRANGEMENTS

The Executive Committee having charge of the National Good Roads Convention to be held in Hopkinsville July 10 and 11, is composed of M. C. Forbes, E. B. Bassett, Lee Ellis, Geo. C. Long, W. T. Cooper, G. D. Dalton, E. W. Dabney, J. T. Wall, W. T. Tandy, Folk Cansler, R. E. Cooper, Geo. E. Gary, M. C. Forbes is chairman, Geo. C. Long, vice-president, Geo. E. Gary secretary. The Executive Committee has appointed the following sub-committees:

COM. ON TRANSPORTATION.

E. M. Sherwood, O. E. Miller, H. M. Dalton, A. B. Crockett, Sec. Jas. Breathitt, Chairman.

The ladies of the city are taking great interest in the Good Roads Convention, and will aid very materially in making it the magnificent success it gives every promise of being.

The following committees have been announced:

LADIES EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

MESDAMES

M. H. Nelson, Chairman. R. L. Woodard, Secretary. Maria Petty, P. F. Thomas, W. T. Blakemore, O. F. Jarrett, F. L. Wilkinson, Nat Galtner, T. O. Underwood, Abby Edmunds, O. K. Wyle, Miss Edith Bentworth.

LADIES RECEPTION COMMITTEE.

MESDAMES

A. W. Wood, Chairman. T. W. Long, J. H. Anderson, J. O. Cook, H. L. McPherson, Jennie Chalkley, Geo. E. Gary, E. P. Russell.

MISSES

Belle Moore, Mary Flack, Kate Harrison, Mary Barbour, Beattie Russell, Sadie Frankel.

The executive committee will have general oversight of all matters naturally requiring their attention such as securing decorated carriages for the industrial and floral parade, arranging the places of reception which will be opened in various locations in the city, etc. The ladies reception committee will see to the proper reception and entertainment of all strangers attending, especially the lady visitors.

The above sub-committees have been very busy with their work which is progressing satisfactorily.

WILL BE ENTERTAINED.

Every visitor who attends the Hopkinsville Good Roads convention will be entertained by the gentlemen having the convention in hand. Headquarters will be opened and there will be several places where refreshments will be served to delegates and visitors in general. Persons contemplating attending the convention can rest assured in advance that every courtesy will be extended them, every attention possible shown them. Hopkinsville invites everybody and is prepared to welcome everybody.

Messrs. Douglas Bell and John Russell are now on a trip over Western Kentucky in the interest of the Good Roads convention. They will urge all the various county judges to appoint delegates, invite the citizens to be present and attend to the distribution of press notices and advertising matter.

Judge E. O. Ward, county judge of Henderson county, has appointed the following delegates to the Good Roads convention to be held in this city July 10 and 11: T. W. Buckner, J. A. Bennett, R. A. Tweedy, B. Hill, James N. Suggs.

Our sister city of Hopkinsville is making all things now ready for the Good Roads convention to be held there July 10 and 11. The convention will last two days and with the welcome extended, for which Hopkinsville is so famous, the occasion will prove a new era in the commercial history of Southern and Western Kentucky.—Elkton Progress.

Good roads are the best investments the farmer can make. The cost of hauling his products to market can be easily cut in two by the use of modern roads.

The next legislature will be called upon to pass a modern road law. In New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and other states the state has an engineer and gives state aid to the construction of important thoroughfares.

The City Bank.

Just as the schools are the register of the moral and intellectual status of a community so are the banks the commercial index of a city. When the banks flourish and prosper it is safe to assume that money is circulating through all the channels of trade. Banks are to the commercial system just what the heart is to the human system, the function of each being to send the strengthening stream through every artery of the system of which it forms a part. The banks of Hopkinsville are among the institutions in which her citizens take the most pride, and among them none occupies a more enviable position in the confidence and esteem of the public than does the City Bank.

This bank is just twenty-one years old, having been organized in 1880. For a youngster only twenty-one years of age the City Bank is in a splendid financial condition. An official statement made at the close of business on the 15th day of this month showed the capital stock to be $80,000; it had a surplus fund of $50,000, undivided profits to the amount of $14,625, and the funds of its patrons on deposit amounted to the sum of $257,791.11.

It is not probable that there is a bank in Kentucky in a better condition than is this one, and this showing speaks volumes in praise of the gentlemen who manage its affairs. At its head as president is Mr. E. B.

Mr. J. L. Tobin.

The man who wants to be well-dressed and make a good showing before his fellow-men always has his clothes made at a first class merchant tailoring establishment—such an one as Mr. J. L. Tobin conducts on Main street in Hopkinsville. Mr. Tobin really needs no printed words of commendation—the clothes that he has been turning out from this establishment for several years have been speaking for him. A good fit speaks louder than words, and a good fit is the only kind of a fit that one gets at Tobin's.

Mr. Tobin has been in the merchant tailoring business practically all his life, and he seems to have inherited his good taste in the matter of clothing from his father, who was for years the leading merchant tailor of Hopkinsville. The question of "what to wear" bothers a great many people, but those who go to Mr. Tobin quickly have the knotty problem solved for them and invariably to their entire satisfaction. Not only is Mr. Tobin a skillful man in the mechanical department of his business, but he is also a close and careful buyer, exercising discriminating taste of the highest order in making his selections of goods, as all who have ever been in his establishment and inspected his stock can testify. He carries such a variety that the most fastidious gentleman can always find something to suit

Hopper Bros.

This establishment is the only one in Hopkinsville doing exclusively a book and stationery business and the proprietors deserve a great deal of credit for doing what none of our business men have heretofore been willing to undertake—that is, to risk their capital in a book store, and they deserve the support of the public. They had an abiding faith in the intelligence of the people of Hopkinsville and believed that a store carrying a full line of books would be sustained by the reading public and the proportions which their business has attained has vindicated their judgment.

The business is now and has for several years past been managed entirely by Mr. Will Hopper, who is one of the most popular young men in the city and an upright, honorable, conscientious business man.

The shelves of Hopper Bros' large store are filled from top to bottom with books of every kind—from works on scientific questions down to books containing only the alphabet of the English language. From their stock of books the taste of any person can easily be satisfied. There are to be found all the standard works of fiction, history and poetry.

This firm's largest sales, however, are in the school book line, for they sell nearly all the books used in all of Hopkinsville's institutions of learning. The first three or four days after the fall opening of the public schools are exceedingly busy days at Hopper's.

Hopper Bros. carry also a large line of periodicals—the leading magazines being always on sale there. They also have on hand at all times the latest novel of the day—the novel that has just made a hit and is being widely discussed in the literary world.

Hopper Bros. have demonstrated the fact that a book store in Hopkinsville can be made to pay.

Spot Cash Grocery.

Mr. Burch, proprietor of the "Spot Cash Grocery," on Main street, has not been in Hopkinsville very long, but he's been here long enough to convince the public as well as his competitors in the grocery line that he has opened his establishment strictly for business. Already his name is familiar to the housekeepers of the city.

Mr. Burch says that he sells for spot cash because it enables him to sell goods much cheaper, because he doesn't have to employ book-keepers and collectors whose salaries in credit business are as a matter of course paid by the customers, nor does he run the risk of contracting bad debts that finally have to be made up by increasing prices to those who do pay. These he gives as his reasons for not selling for anything else but cash. He declares that the cash system is the only satisfactory way of doing business. His rule is to buy for cash and in that way get a discount and sell for cash so as to be able to give that discount to those who patronize him.

In this "Spot Cash Grocery" is to be found a large stock of fresh groceries—and he sells so fast that his groceries are necessarily fresh, because they haven't time to become stale. He has one price to everybody, marking his goods in the start at the lowest figure for which he can possibly afford to sell them and make a living. He counts on making money by turning over rapidly what he has at a small profit each time rather than by keeping his money tied up and waiting for a big profit on a few sales. This plan certainly pays him or he would have abandoned it, for he has been in business a long while.

The "Spot Cash Grocery" has a delivery wagon and all goods purchased there are at once delivered to any part of the city.

Kentucky was a pioneer state in the construction of good roads, and some of the turnpike built fifty and seventy-five years ago are models of road engineering.

Kentucky has some of the finest turnpikes in the world, but President Moore of the National Good Roads Association says he hasn't seen a single modern dirt road in the state.

When Speed Is Essential

One of our light, well built and unequalled Road Wagons, with rubber tires, meets the demand as nothing else can. Every part of the vehicle displays the same superiority in construction, only the highest grade of materials being employed in the process of manufacture. Our carriage quartette, speed, strength, beauty and lowness of price charm all.

HOPKINSVILLE, KY.

Grace Episcopal Church, Cor. Sixth and Liberty Streets.

Long, one of the most popular men in the county, who has done much to add to the popularity of the concern. Mr. W. T. Tandy, the efficient cashier, is one of the best known bank officials in Kentucky and is by everybody regarded as a man of most excellent business judgment and one of the very safest financiers to be found anywhere, a man who never "goes off half cocked" about matters of importance. The board of directors is composed of five of the leading business men of Christian county—W. W. Garnett, J. E. Croft, O. A. Thompson, E. B. Long, and W. T. Tandy—and it would be difficult indeed to select a more progressive and at the same time more conservative board. With such men as these conducting its affairs the continued success of the City Bank is assured.

The longer the matter is delayed the greater will be the loss from bad roads, and the more it will take to fix them up, as we must do finally.

In the matter of public roads we are just where we were a hundred years ago. That's a fact.

Shall Kentucky remain behind the other states in the matter of public highways? We must get out of the mud.

Does it pay to have roads that are unfit for use three or four months a year?

his taste. Not only is he careful but he is also very prompt in the execution of orders entrusted to him. He employs only the very best of workmen, and every garment sent out from his establishment is perfect in fit, of the very latest style and artistically finished off, only the very best of thread, buttons, linings, trimmings, &c., &c., being used. He personally inspects every garment from time to time as the work on it progresses.

It is not in the nature of an experiment for any one to give Mr. Tobin an order for clothes. He has for several years made the clothes of most of Hopkinsville's well-dressed men—and his business is rapidly increasing, for each suit he turns out sells another to somebody that had not patronized him before.

When the people of Hopkinsville want anything they know how to go after it. Watch that Good Roads convention.—Trenton Times.

The subject of good roads is the most important one the people of Kentucky, or any other state, can consider. Good roads will add immensely to the value of farming property, as it will make the markets easily accessible to farm and garden products, and by increasing the facilities and comforts of life in the country, will lead to large purchases of lands. Our farming people must not fail to attend the good roads gathering.—Cathoon Star.

Mr. C. H. Layne.

Mr. C. H. Layne is a man in the livery business world it is frequently the case that a round peg gets in a square hole while a square peg gets in a round hole, but in the livery business Charlie Layne is a square peg in a square hole. There's a man in Hopkinsville who understands his business better than Charlie Layne understands his. Whatever there is about a horse he knows it—and knows it thoroughly. He's also one of the few men who will always tell the truth about a horse—even when he's swapping.

Mr. Layne has been in the livery business in Hopkinsville for eight or ten years, and his business has always been in a prosperous condition, showing that the public has confidence in him. He is always kind, courteous and obliging to everybody and such a man is always popular. He conducts his business along modern lines, and knows that to be successful it is necessary for him to keep good horses and stylish rigs of every description—and he keeps them, too. His horses are always as smooth, fat and sleek as it is possible to keep livery horses, and his vehicles of every kind are kept brushed up clean and freshly painted. He buys, sells, swaps, feeds, hires horses—in short, he does an all-around livery business. His establishment is a large one, his building being 50 by 300 feet, with accommodations for about 250 head of stock and a large floor space for vehicles, and is equipped with every requirement for conducting business successfully.

Mr. Layne is always prepared to furnish carriages, hacks, vehicles of every sort for all occasions on the shortest notice. His stable is open day and night.

Mr. Layne is one of the most public-spirited citizens of Hopkinsville and is worthy of the big patronage he enjoys at the hands of the public.

Mr. R. C. Hardwick.

It is doubtful if there is a store south of Louisville that carries a larger stock of drugs and druggists' sundries than is always to be found in the house of Mr. R. C. Hardwick on Main street in Hopkinsville. His stock would easily fill half a dozen ordinary drug stores usually found in cities the size of Hopkinsville. Mr. Hardwick can fill any want that can usually be filled in a drug store—and many that the usual drug store can't fill. The fact that he is always receiving big shipments shows that his sales are enormous. In this establishment particular attention is paid to the prescription department, three registered pharmacists being on hand to compound prescriptions—and the services of one of these can always be secured at any hour of the night. In a house doing such a large business as does this one drugs do not remain on hand long enough to deteriorate, to get stale, so Mr. Hardwick can assure the public of the fact that his prescriptions are always compounded from fresh, pure drugs. His line of druggists' sundries is simply immense.

In addition to his drug business, Mr. Hardwick also has a large jewelry store—adjoining his drug store, where he carries a well assorted stock of watches, clocks, jewelry, &c., &c. He has in this establishment experienced jewelers, who are prepared to do any and all sorts of repair work.

Mr. Hardwick moved to Hopkinsville in 1891, ten years ago, and has been very successful in business ever since his arrival. He believes thoroughly in carrying a large stock of goods, as he regards it a poor business plan to have to turn a customer away with "I'm sorry, but I haven't got it, I never had a call for it before." He always has it and by having it and having it in sight he creates a call for it. A wise business policy that. His success has proven the wisdom of the policy. He buys for cash, discounts his bills and gives his customers the benefit of this discount in their transactions with him.

Mr. E. M. Moss.

Everybody in Hopkinsville who rides or who ever did ride a bicycle knows "Muncie" Moss. He is a thorough in all matters concerning bicycles. What he doesn't know about a bicycle is hardly worth knowing. At his establishment on Sixth street every ailment that a bicycle is heir to is treated in a scientific manner by Mr. Moss or one of his employees. He is an enthusiastic wheelman himself and the work of repairing wheels is with him sort of a labor of love, and long practice has made him very expert in the work.

E. M. Moss & Co. carry a complete line of the leading make of bicycles of the very latest patent, his leaders being the Columbia, Hartford and Rugby. These three just can't be beat—they stand at the top, they are perfect triumphs of the bicycle maker's art.

Moss & Co. sell wheels from $25 to $75, and they sell lots of 'em, too. They also carry a complete line of bicycle sundries—bells, lamps, brakes, pumps, &c., &c., which they sell at prices as low as any one could expect.

They are also wholesale and retail dealers in graphophones and phonographs and music for both.

In addition to all these Moss & Co. carry a large line of sporting goods, such as footballs, baseballs, punching bags, human-bells, &c. Their facilities for doing repair work on wheels and guns are not excelled anywhere. Not only is the work done scientifically, but it is done promptly and at exceedingly reasonable rates.

Several years ago Mr. Moss began to repair bicycles without any intention of going regularly into the business, but his work was so well done that business was forced upon him and he was compelled to open up an establishment for such work, and business continued to pour in until to-day he has to employ assistants to do much of the repairing, all of which, however, is done directly under his personal supervision.

It is rather remarkable that the farmers of Christian and surrounding counties who have given hundreds of thousands of dollars to build railroads are unwilling to spend anything for the betterment of the road that leads right in front of their door.

When it comes to improving the country roads the farmers ought to be the most enthusiastic of all men, yet such is not the case—many of them have to be begged to take part in the Good Roads movement.

If the merchants, lawyers, doctors &c. can afford to pay something to get good roads oughtn't the farmers, who haul over them and get more benefit from them than all other people put together be willing to stand his share of the expense?

The National Good Roads Association has been ten years in growing to its present position of power and usefulness. It first built good roads at the World's Fair, and since then has held conventions in every part of the United States. It has secured the organization of a good roads bureau in the department of agriculture, and has succeeded in having planks indorsing good roads inserted in the platform of both parties. Its object is to promote good roads legislation in every state. The next national convention will be held in Buffalo, in September, and it is hoped that this will be the greatest good roads meeting in the world.

A Frankfort dispatch says: An invitation was received at the executive department today from the citizens of Hopkinsville to the Governor and his staff to attend the good roads convention to be held in that city on July 10 and 11 next. If convenient for him to do so, the executive will attend the convention.

The Masculine Test.

Cholly—Oh, yes, young Gethar is rich and received in good society, but it is plain to see he is not to the manner born.

May—How is that?

Cholly—He can't get into a hansom without hitting his silk hat to save his life.

Mr. L. H. McKee.

In looking back over the career of a man who has achieved success in the business world the first remark usually made by the average man is, "hasn't he been lucky," when generally the success thus attributed to luck came from a small beginning and came only after the very hardest efforts, the most patient and unrelenting labor and was entirely the result of the application of fine business judgment—acquired often from costly experience—energy and brains to the everyday problems of mercantile life, even luck counting for little unless a man has the ability to take advantage of it. Such is the case with Mr. L. H. McKee, the wide-awake, hustling, energetic, popular grocer whose store on Main street is one of Hopkinsville's biggest establishments and who does a grocery business equalled by few houses in this section of Kentucky. From a small beginning Mr. McKee, has, by keeping his eyes open and attending strictly to business at all times achieved an eminent success—but it came at a result of work, not luck.

Mr. McKee is a native of Christian county, and began his career at Casky, where he sold groceries in 1876. Later he moved to Hopkinsville and became a member of the grocery firm of Cowan, Huggins & McKee, and still later he was with Charles McKee & Sons. His present business was begun in 1882, when he became agent and manager for Mrs. N. L. McKee, and from the day when he first began he has enjoyed a large patronage which he, by constant application to business, has increased to its present very large proportions.

One key to his success is the fact that he carries at all times the best stock of groceries that money can buy, and his goods are always fresh and pure, a fact that the public has long since recognized. Another thing—he carries a large and varied assortment and people have come to know that no matter what they may happen to want they can always find it at McKee's.

Mr. McKee enjoys a very large trade among the farmers of the county, first, because, having been raised in the country, he knows just what's needed on a farm and so makes it a point to carry a special line of goods adapted to farmers' needs, then again, he is always prepared to buy their produce at the highest market prices.

In addition to his retail business Mr. McKee also engages in business as a wholesaler, and furnishes stocks for many country stores in Christian county.

A Noted Optician.

In addition to being one of the best known jewelers in this end of Kentucky, Mr. M. D. Kelly, of Hopkinsville, is also a noted optician, being a graduate in that science and having had wide experience. Mr. Kelly keeps on hand at all times a full line of fine pebble glasses and when one makes a purchase in this line from him he scientifically adjusts them to the eyes in order that they may be a relief and a help to the eyes instead of doing them an injury, which is the case when the glasses do not fit.

In addition to his stock of glasses, Mr. Kelly carries one of the largest and handsomest lines of jewelry to be found in Southwestern Kentucky, and all sorts of repair work is promptly and scientifically done at his establishment.
